"In leaving this country for home I feel it my duty to express to the people of the United States, through the press, an assurance of my sincere and genuine appreciation of the respect, courtesy and friendliness shown me during my stay in this country.

itude.

AVE FORMER EMPLOYE PERMISSION TO RIDE IN CAR

Fired tpon By His timest, a Battle Follows, While Train is Busning Sixty Miles an Hour-The Supposed Robber Found Dring, and the Meanenger Seriously Burt.

St Louis, -- -- Belleving he was pattling with a desperate train robber, John E. Ryan, Pacific express messenger on a Walrash train coming to St. for any case it fails to cure. Send for Louis from Chicago before daylight, circulars and testimonials.

The duel lasted from Bement, Ill. where Greene entered Ryan's car with a request that he he allowed to ride to St. Louis, and the yards at Decatur, where Greene fell or sprang from the car. He was found beside the rails of the main track after Ryan had been found, helpless, on the floor of his car. Rynn Tells His Story.

Ryan, speaking with difficulty because of his wounds, told this story to Conductor Knapp, whose run was from Chicago to Decatur:

The train rattled out of the Bement yards, and was soon under full speed, going at the rate of almost 60 miles an hour. Ryan was attending to his duties as messenger,

A shot from Greene's revolver rang out, and the bullet plerced Ryan's neck from the back. Hyan lunged against the side of the car, to get a repeating rifle which rested there. As he turned, another shot from Greene's revolver struck him in the body. Ryan brought the rifle to his shoulder, but it failed to work. He dropped it to the floor and sprang upon Greene.

A Desperate Battle,

They struggled across the car, and Ryan's heels caught against the side of a box in which he had been placing registered packages. He fell across the edge of this box, with Preene on top of him. In struggling to regain command of himself, Ryan thrust his haad into the box. It came against the cold barrel of a revolver, which he had placed, as a precaution, inside the box. for protection in the event of an emergency. With difficulty he brought it to a point where it touched Greene's body. He fired, and the bullet crashed into Greene's chest. Greene sprang up and staggered back. Ryan, arising, fired at him again. Each, with his aim di-verted by his wound, fired until his revolver was empty. The train was rattling into the Decatur yards. Greene lurched toward the open door, and balf fell, half sprang, to the ground Ryaz sank to the floor of the car, his empty revolver in his hand and a pool of blood forming from the wound in his neck. Discovered By Conductor.

When the train stopped at the Decatur station, the messenger did not appear at the door. Conductor Knapp, going forward to see that all was well, peared into the car and found Hyan helpless. Ryan told briefly what had ably find Greene in the yards. Members of the crew ran back. Two hundred yards from the station they found Greene, stretched out and unconscious, close to the rails over which the train had passed.

Ryan's wounds are three-one in the neck, entering at the back and passing out through the mouth; and two painful perforations of the shoulder.

Greene is also shot three times. One bullet passed through his left lung, another struck him in the stomach and the third made a flesh wound in the
